A Drunken Indian Shoots a Heber Resident.

WHO SOLD HIM THE FIRE WATER?

Items of Interest Gathered by Herald Correspondents Throughout the Territory—North, South, East and West.

The Young Ladies' M. I. A. of Nephi, held their annual ball in honor of their fourteenth anniversary last evening in the Social hall. It was a very enjoyable affair and did honor to the promoters of it.

The security of water has a dampening effect on business in southern Utah, but with this exception all is well.

Johnny Acomb, of the Utah Central, says he won't talk with a newspaper man because he is sure to see it in print, but he induced him to tell a story of how he gave one of the newspapermen a ride in the "pump" Johnny, who had been trying to "pump" Johnny, and in the future attempts had fallen asleep so soundly that some one, just for an item, relieved him of all his jewelry, watch, and even his ticket. Well, if you want to know the effect on his discovering the loss, just ask Johnny and you will be rewarded. This was an excellent item for our youthful friends, but when his property was returned, he concluded it was not worthy of note.

Preparations for the glorious Fourth are every where manifest, especially at Payson, Nephi and Provo.

Prof. H. A. Anderson, of the Brigham Young academy, was married yesterday at Mant. His choice has fallen on Miss Grace Tanner, daughter of Bishop Myron Tanner of Provo. "May they live long and be happy."

Nephi's new savings bank is on the quick trot, and will be in successful operation in a few days.

Mona has been slighted in regard to having a telephone. This is to be regretted as it seems that a little trouble and expense would give them one now it runs through this town.

Provo is experiencing a building boom which is just what is wanted there. Plenty of work and money.

TRAVELING INDUSTRIALIST.

Provo, June 29, 1889.

Heber Happenings.

The people are making preparations for the coming celebration of our national day. There are no new cases of diphtheria in Midway, but there is some throat trouble here, which we hope will not prove to be anything serious.

Mrs. John Clyde, who was hurt some six weeks or two months ago from a strain, is still in a very critical condition. Dr. Pike, from Provo city, has been up this week to see her. He says Dr. Lindsay is doing all for her that can be done, and that he thinks she will get along now.

Our schools were all closed last Thursday for the summer vacation. The teachers and pupils, together with a great many of the parents and friends, making a party of between twenty and thirty teams, went Friday morning with their picnic to spend the day four or five miles up the river, the children being prepared with songs, recitations, etc., after which they had foot races, giving prizes to the fastest runners. Altogether, it was a very enjoyable day, and due to be remembered by the young in years to come.

Mr. John Carl met with a very narrow escape from death yesterday morning. He and Mr. A. Munnick were preparing to start for (Tintal) valley and had gone to Anderson's blacksmith shop for a wagon when Wanrouse and his son, well known Indians in and about Heber, rode up and commenced conversing as usual in a friendly manner. They noticed that he had been drinking and that he had five or six gallons of whiskey tied on the back of the boy's saddle. He wanted Mr. Carl to transport some business for him out at Ashley, which he agreed to do and told him he would see him again when he got out there. They went on talking, not thinking of any danger, when all at once the Indian drew his revolver and fired two shots, the first taking effect, passing through Mr. Carl's left shoulder, a few inches above the heart and coming out at the back. As he stepped back the other ball passed in front of him. Mr. Carl thinks it was done more by accident than purposely. Dr. Lindsay was sent for and the wound dressed. He says he thinks Mr. Carl will soon be around again. The Indian was arrested and locked up, but the boy struck out for the hills with the whiskey, and has not been heard from since, having a few minutes the start of those in pursuit. They had just come from Salt Lake, so it will be impossible to find out where they got their liquor, but it is certainly true that people stopped selling intoxicating drinks to the Indians.

HEBER, June 27, 1889.

Kayville Notes.

Scow has entirely disappeared from the mountains.

Work on the new addition to the Co-op store was commenced today.

Mason work on the academy has been suspended during the last week, want of bricks being the cause of the delay.

The academy, city hall, and addition to the co-op store, are the leading improvements for our town this season.

The big range north of here has become dotted with herders. A large amount of the grain is already cut. The crop is above the average.

Mrs. Jones, wife of N. V. Jones, who has been seriously ill for some weeks, was today taken to her home in Salt Lake. We hope she may soon recover and favor us for many years with her usual visit.

Hammies & Sheffield, our rustling butcher boys are doing a good business.

On Sunday last, while Mr. Allen, our architect and builder, was taking a ride in his buggy, his horse became frightened and threw him from the seat. He was severely bruised and is now going around with his head bandaged up, presenting a rather sad appearance.

Jimmy Proudfoot, the tonsorial artist, has purchased the old co-op, butcher shop, and today, with the aid of a number of men and a few kegs of beer, removed it across the street. Jimmy intends fitting it up in the best style, and says in a few days will be ready to open up his many patrons in his new quarters.

Our town at present is unusually free from sickness and if no change takes place the services of our local physician can be dispensed with, while he takes his usual summer out in the mountains.

Never before were our peace officers in such demand as this afternoon. The men who assisted to move the butcher shop having overestimated their capacity became very quarrelsome and a series of fights ensued. Two of them received severe injuries and were taken to Dr. Ingram to have their wounds dressed. Dr. Kramer, who is with us, and who witnessed the whole proceedings, was very indignant to think that a man who comes here to practice a legitimate business should be compelled to pay a license, and others allowed to get drunk and fight in what he called a prohibition town without the interference of either marshal or police.

Naval Academy Recommendations. WASHINGTON, June 28.—The report of the board of visitors to the Naval academy at Annapolis recommends that the academy course be reduced from six to four years, and that at the end of four years cadets be commissioned as ensigns. It also recommends that it should be required by law that the designation of persons for appointment and their alternatives be made one year in advance, which is practicable. The board also recommends that the maximum limit of age be twenty instead of nineteen years.

The Iron and Steel Mills Scale.

PRERUM, June 29.—It can be safely said that there will be no iron strike in the mills over the iron game this year. The officials of the association were notified today that sixteen firms had signed the scale. A number of others have signified their intention of signing as the necessary repairs at their plant have been made and within a month it is thought that all the iron mills in the country will be in operation under the new scale. Some trouble is expected in the steel mills as the manufacturers insist upon a reduction.

A Minnesota Insane Asylum Scandal.

ST. PAUL, June 29.—The work of the committee investigation of the Rochester insane asylum scandal was continued in this city today, with a repetition of the previous testimony. Specific cases were cited where the patients had been badly used and maltreated.

Mrs. Eva Bartlett had been the asylum housekeeper for ten weeks in 1887 and she denounced the attendants as immoral, ignorant and brutal and gave instances and names.

Hans Mikkelsen, of Minneapolis, gave some very interesting testimony. Epitomized, it was that he had been dragged from his bed while an inmate and one of his ribs broken from a blow by an attendant. He said that two of the attendants, sick and beat a very harmless man, and he saw a man named Swenson beaten because he would not stand up when too weak to stand.

AN HOUR WITH THE PHONOGRAPH.

Edison's Great Invention is Tested in Salt Lake City.

By invitation of George W. Holt, of Omaha, Mr. Bywater, master mechanic, and Mr. Cope, general passenger agent, of the Utah Central Railway company, with a friend, attended a "seance" at the Walker house last Friday night at which the phonograph was the medium. The instrument that Mr. Holt has is the first ever brought to Salt Lake city, and its wonderful powers were ably demonstrated by the skill of the gentleman. The first experiment was an address of introduction to the phonograph, given by Mr. Holt in about the following manner: "Phony, old boy, I wish to introduce to you Mr. Bywater, of the Utah Central shops, Salt Lake city, and I want you to show him what you can do. He will appreciate your many fine qualities, and also what defects remain to be corrected. I expect that you will talk to him as I am now talking to you. In a little while I expect to see electricity controlling the locomotives on the railways, propelling air ships, hauling passengers in vehicles as large as the cars that now run upon the lines, from one end of the continent to the other. Now, I guess this will be enough to fire your listeners, so I will conclude with a whistle."

Mr. Holt then whistled, "Hang up the Baby's Stocking" in to the machine, reversed the cylinder, gave the connecting cart to Mr. Bywater, and the speech and the whistle were reproduced as naturally as they were given by Mr. Holt. The voice could be clearly heard by all who were near the phonograph, but not so distinctly as with the tubes. By reversing the cylinder, the speech could be reproduced at the will of the operator. Another cylinder was now introduced which contained an orchestral performance given by the Fort Omaha band on June 20.

The various instruments could be distinctly heard and the forte passages were grand. Solos were given by the different instruments as naturally as they are heard in the performance of the band itself.

Another cylinder was now introduced which gave a cornet solo by a celebrated Omaha musician, and this was followed by a tenor song by Nat Brigham, well-known to our theatre goers, through his excellent performance of "Mr. Sampson of Omaha." The celebrated singer's voice was easily recognized by those who had heard him in Salt Lake city. The recitatives and the songs and instrumental performances are recorded on a waxed cylinder, the composition of which is only known to Mr. Edison, and is harmonized by electricity. The impressions made on the cylinders are too fine to be discerned by the naked eye, and are not deeper than the two thousandths part of an inch. So long as these impressions remain on the cylinder, sound can be reproduced at any time.

When necessary to put new matter on the cylinders, the surface is turned smooth. These cylinders can be sent through the mails, and any sounds that have been written on them can be reproduced on any phonograph, at any distance from the original point. Mr. Holt frequently receives letters in this way from his wife, containing from one thousand to one thousand and five hundred words. The agency for the phonograph in Utah has been secured by a Mr. Post, of Cheyenne, and we may soon expect to see the phonograph in practical use in Utah. The machines are not sold, but are rented to users at about forty dollars per annum. The cylinders are purchased by the users, and will cost about twenty cents each. The power for the phonograph is supplied in various ways—by clock work, by batteries, and by stored electricity. A small storage battery used by Mr. Holt lasts about six weeks. The phonograph will be very useful in commercial offices, and will largely supersede stenography, as the type writer can transcribe from it with ease. McFarlane being his objective point.

A Hot Time in the Chamber of Deputies.

PARIS, June 28.—In the chamber of deputies today, N. Pichou questioned the government concerning the letter which a journalist named Woestyne wrote to Myer who was recently sentenced to imprisonment for connection with the credit mobili-ment for connection with the credit mobili- frauds and suggesting the forgery of documents implicating the government in those frauds. He asked whether that was the only attempt made in this case to discredit the republicans. M. Thervet, minister of justice, replied that ten letters were seized in Myer's house, and their contents testified to the shamelessness of the Boulangist party. De Cassagnac declared the letters were forged, forgeries. Thervet answered the charges by saying that Myer admitted the letters were genuine. He also mentioned the name of an anti-republican leader who visited him. Here there was a violent interruption by the right and De Cassagnac in an excited manner accused Thervet of being Myer's accomplice. This led to another uproar. De Cassagnac was censured by the president and expelled from the chamber. Many members of the right followed him out while the left cheered the president's decision.

Thervet announced that it was the intention of the government to prosecute the offenders. Then M. Berthelet, on behalf of the Boulangists, and Cassagnac, on behalf of the republicans, having denounced the intrigues, the chamber, without a dissenting voice, advised the government to adopt measures for their repression.
